

Pears' Soap

To keep the skin clean is to wash the excretions from it off; the skin takes care of itself inside, if not blocked outside.

To wash it often and clean, without doing any sort of violence to it, requires a most gentle soap, a soap with no free alkali in it.

Pears' is supposed to be the only soap in the world that has no alkali in it.

All sorts of stores sell it, especially druggists; all sorts of people use it.

The gubernatorial contest is warming up. Dalton and Stone will go into the convention with a very large number of instructed delegates, but neither will have enough to nominate, and at this time it would be impossible to predict the result. Either Yeaman, Gibson or Claycomb may yet receive the nomination.

The Harper-Fricke grain elevator, at Lanthan, seven miles west of Lamar Barton county, on the Gulf railroad, was burned one night last week. It contained a large amount of wheat and corn and the loss will amount to $14,000; insurance $7,000. The fire is supposed to have originated from sparks from a passing locomotive.

A rich man recently died and left his money to three people, with a proviso in the will that each of them should put $100 in the coffin of the deceased to be buried with him. The legatees grumbled, of course, but could not decline to fulfill the condition. Two of them having deposited $100 each in gold in the coffin, the third wrote out a check for $300 and calmly took possession of the change.

ABOUT ten days ago a stranger came to Kenton Bros.' livery stable, at Carrollton, and called for a team stating that he was going out northwest of town and would not return until the next day. The team was hitched to the buggy, the stranger got in and drove away, and that is the last that has been seen by Kenton Bros. of man, horses or buggy. All attempts to trace the bold, bad man have failed.

Specimen Cases. S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his Stomach was disordered, his Liver was afflicted to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Specker, Catawba, O., had five large Fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold by W. C. Gaston Drug store.

The family of T. A. Murphy, at Trenton, Grundy county, had an exciting experience with a house-breaker one night last week. At about 1 o'clock the burglar entered through a window and aroused Miss Lillie, who screamed loud enough to arouse her father, who ran to her room, but just in time to see the offender leaving.

A KANSAS CITY firm has had men employed in the vicinity of Slater, Saline county, for the past ten days cutting bluegrass seed. They have a machine which strips the heads off of the grass and leaves the stalks standing. In this manner they have headed all the bluegrass on the 125 acre pasture of Col. Pike Thomson, near that city. They go from there to Marshall, in which locality they have several fields to cut.

The fourth of July was celebrated at Macon City with pomp and pride by about 15,000 people. A grand trades procession occurred in the morning. The visiting bands were from LaPlata and Bevier. The oration was delivered by Rev. G. M. Gaiser, of Macon. The day and night fireworks cost several hundred dollars, and on the whole everything was very satisfactory to the visitors. The Calathumpian parade was unique and original.

SUNDAY night of last week a young and beautiful girl living on the outskirts of Louisiana, Pike county, died suddenly, supposedly by arsenic poisoning. After a thorough investigation it proved to be mysterious, whether the poison was self-administered or given to her with murderous intent. The victim, Rosie Gladfield, was a beautiful domestic girl, about 18 years of age, and had on several occasions worked in the various hotels of that city, until recently, she having procured a situation with a family on the east side of the river.

The little 4-year-old daughter of Moses Kirkbridge, of Milan, Sullivan county, was accidentally shot and fatally wounded at the residence of R. H. Rankus, about three miles east of that town, on Sunday of last week. The 2-year-old son of Mr. Rankus found a revolver in an open trunk up stairs, belonging to the hired man, and, child like, dropped it down through the ventilator in the floor. The weapon was discharged by the fall, the ball entering the abdomen of the little girl passing upward and coming out through the side. At last accounts the child was still alive, but in a critical condition.

In division No. 1, of the supreme court of Missouri, Saturday of last week Judge Black rendered a decision which involves the race question to a certain extent. Simpson C. Younger, a negro, brought suit against A. Judah, manager of the Ninth street theater in Kansas City, because he and his companion, a negro woman, were not permitted to occupy seats in a part of the building occupied by white people. It appears he purchased tickets for this part of the house, but when it was discovered that he was a negro the seats were refused him, but he was offered seats in a different part of the building, the balcony, a place reserved for colored people. The court says that the tickets were sold on the supposition that they were to be used by white people. The fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution does not prohibit such discrimination. It does not undertake to regulate individual rights or confer new rights, but only prohibits certain kinds of state legislation. When colored persons attend theaters and other places of amusement, conducted and carried on by white persons, custom assigns them to separate seats. It works out natural laws and race peculiarities. In conclusion, the court says: "The colored man has and is entitled to have all the rights of a citizen, but it cannot be said that equality of rights means identity in all respects. Here the defendant did not exclude or attempt to exclude colored persons from his theater. He provided accommodations for them, but in doing so required them to purchase tickets and take seats in the balcony, and this rule adopted by him accords with the custom and usage prevailing in this state. Such custom has the force and effect of law until some competent and legislative power shall establish some other different rule. The defendant's rule was no more than a reasonable regulation which he had a right to make and enforce." The opinion of Judge Black is concurred in by all the members of division No. 1.

The Richmond Conservator of last week related a good snake story on Willis Williams, of Ray county. He was harvesting his wheat and his son, Arthur, was at work in the field. An old glove which he had been wearing was put in his trousers' pocket, and had worked through a hole and down alongside his leg. The boy gave one long agonized yell and calling to his father that a snake was in his breeches leg, grabbing what he supposed was the snake, Arthur held it away from his person and tried to choke it to death. Willis ran up with cheering words and with a large knife in his hand to help his offspring. "Just hold still, son," he said, "just wait till I get hold of it and I'll cut the thing out." Gathering up a generous piece of the cloth under his son's hand he made a swift cut with the knife around the snake (?) and threw it twenty feet or more away, and found when he went to examine it that he had saved his son from the awful consequences of a bite from—a common leather glove! Willis did not tell the Conservator this thrilling snake story, but one of his neighbors did.

We have better homes and more conveniences of life than any other people upon the face of the globe. The farmers of our country live better than did the kings and princes two hundred years ago, and they have twice as much sense and heart. Liberty and labor has given us all. Remember that all men have equal rights. Remember that the man who acts well his part—who loves his friends the best, is most willing to help others, truest to his obligation, who has the best heart, the most feeling, the deepest sympathies, and who freely gives to others the rights that he claims for himself—is the best man and is the one to enjoy the fruits of his own labor.

It Saves the Children.

Mr. C. H. Shaven, Wellsville, Kan., says: "It is with pleasure that I speak of the good Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has done my family during the last fourteen years. In the most obstinate cases of summer complaint and diarrhoea among my children, it acted as a charm, making it never necessary to call in a physician. I can truthfully say that in my judgment, based on years of experience, there is not a medicine in the market that is its equal. For sale by Sneed's Drug & Gro. Co.

Life in the Penitentiary. Rev. Dr. O. W. Gauss, chaplain of the Missouri penitentiary, has awakened considerable interest throughout the state in behalf of a prison reform movement. But few people take any interest in this question. It is generally conceded that the fate of a convict is not deserving of attention, as he placed himself beyond the jurisdiction of public welfare. No subject excites as little concern as prison reform. People do not care to inform themselves. The only way that public interest can be aroused is by the publication of some prison horror. This will keep the public talking for a few days and then the subject will be forgotten.

The Tribune has probably said more than any paper in the state on the subject of prison reform, and as we use the word prison we mean the penitentiary. To any person whose sensibilities are not dead, life in the penitentiary is a living hell. Prison life is odious and irksome, to say nothing of disgraceful. We do not mean that the convicts are cruelly treated or half fed, clothed or doctored when sick. The sanitary regulations of the prison are good; the food is plain and there is but little variety, but it is wholesome and the regulations of the prison are not more strict than they should be. Time and again we have investigated, the sensational stories of the barbarous treatment of convicts and have always found the same to be false.

But life in a great prison is something fearful to contemplate. The laws are framed with the idea of making money out of the convicts and not with any view of reforming the same. It is doubtful if ever a convict was made better by imprisonment in the penitentiary, while there is an abundance of evidence to prove that most of them leave the institution educated in crime. When a man is sent to the penitentiary the state seizes his labor, and, if he is able-bodied, he is probably leased to a contractor for 50 cents a day. No matter if he is the father of a starving family, the state will seize his labor and starve the family. Usually poor men are the only class that are sent to the penitentiary. At present we only recall two men who possessed any considerable means that served time in the penitentiary, and one of them was pardoned out. If a convict stays in the penitentiary a few years he will leave the institution broken down in health. He will receive enough money to pay his fare to the place from whence he was sentenced and probably $2 or $3 additional, and thus he will begin anew the battle of life with the odium of prison life stamped upon him. No one wants to employ an ex-convict, and his inducements to return to crime become almost a necessity.

Dr. Gauss, if we understand his position, takes the ground that the statutory provisions governing convicts are wrong; that the laws should be so framed as to make the reformation of felons at least a possibility. This does not mean that convicts should remain idle or the prison converted into a Sunday school, but that the convicts, particularly those who are young and have offended against law and society for the first time, be afforded an opportunity to reform and lead an honorable life in the future. This is a matter of grave importance. The state is grading between 600 and 700 expert criminals now under the existing laws. Dr. Gauss has promised the Tribune some short articles on the subject of "Prison Reform" in the future, and we trust that the same may be carefully read.—Jefferson City Tribune.
